

1 Tool in online learning that you did not have in F2F learning - Brainstorm

- Ability to follow up with students privately when needed
- Ability to reach more kids with barrier or transportation (x2)
- Access to screen sharing for instant resources and examples
- Anonymous polling/voting (x2)
- Blog posts, with active links to be clicked on by participants
- Chat box for roleplays
- Guest speaker videos
- Interactive drawing
- Kahoots! (x2)
- Letting people write to me, versus having to speak in class
- Microsoft Teams
- More intense zoom skills and comfort!
- More participation than before, honest answers without judgement
- Mute on Zoom - Participants can better take care of their learning needs (especially my fidgeters and movers and shakers) and get comfortable without disturbing the rest of the participants.
- Online buzzers for games. We had physical bells, but not enough for everyone to have their own.
- Opens up different ways for gamification.
- Outside classroom
- Personalized tools for students with dysgraphia/dyslexia/etc (Make it easier for them to write)
- SO MANY virtual co-facilitation options! (x2)
- Tons of workshops I am now able to access, like this one!
- Web games
- YouTube channel (for our org)
- Zoom (esp. Gallery/Hollywood Squares view) (x2)
